

Abstract of the Disclosure

A relay apparatus includes an external connection interface section and common terminal section. A plurality of communication sections are connected to the external connection interface section. The external 5 connection interface section individually interfaces with the communication sections. The common terminal section is commonly provided for the communication sections and controls to perform communication by using one of the communication sections connected to the 10 external connection interface section in accordance with operation by a user.